DOT Captain:

"We issue one citation per violation in a 24 hour period. A vehicle is eligible to be booted when it has 5 or more unpaid, delinquent parking citations."

Woops! My bad. I misread the "counseling" suggestion as having come from Pat. It came from Nate. (I knew Pat knew more than to ask the question but didn't figure it out. I just assumed she was still enjoying "holiday egg noggs."

For Nate's info: At least 2 or 3 members of the Neighborhood Council have asked her not to proceed. I spoke with her on the telephone, then personally meet with her in an attempt to do the same. I believe that Pat Lyon has also meet with her to no avail.

I've spent enough time to figure out she is not going to be moved by common sense or a desire to work with her neighbors. Despite this the BID choose not to oppose her liquor license application; perhaps that was a mistake. So, Nate, if you want to try counseling, be our guest.

In the meantime, the BID's interest is effective enforcement. What's your plan? Can 1 citation per hour be issued? At what point does the boot and towing happen?

Let us know your thoughts Nate. Thank you.

We have. She's chosen to ignore us. Maybe you can convince her, Pat.

Why wouldn't we council her on the consequences, plus poor relations with the BID?

Yea, she's going to get ticketed then after 1 hour...unless, of course, she moves it after an hour...pretty lame

Not good news. I spoke to Laura about it. There isn't much the City can do to regulate this food truck or any food truck for that matter. If they get their letter-rating from County Health they can set up and abide by whatever posted parking restriction exists.

Yea, I know....

Don

I spoke to Nate today re the above. We are getting a DOT ruling on the subject and plan to invite Vanda in for a "discussion".

I will keep you posted. Pat
